FOOD SUPERVISOR JOHN F. BLANDY
Big pots and pans for big appetites

New Food Supervisor's Job Is Smaller' More Tummies

The new supervisor of food services for Torrance schools has experience in feeding lots of hungry people, but his present and former customers differ in size.

John F. Blandy, recently retired from the U.S. Marine Corps as a food-service officer, will adjust his thoughts to smaller customers.

Torrance working conditions probably will be different. He was in charge of feeding marines on Korea battle fronts, in cold-weather endurance training in Northern California, and on the Mojave Desert. He has had experience at Quantico, and Kaneohe, Hawaii.

Previously, Blandy's largest number of potential customers was 8500. In Torrance there will be some 25,000 mouths to feed.

The cafeteria supervisors have charge of 90-people who prepare and serve food in 30 school cafeterias. Last year, for instance, the supervisor had to worry about 41 tons of meat, 19 tons of bread and nine tons of butter. During the year 120,000 hot dogs were eaten in school cafeterias.

"Type A" lunches in elementary-school cafeterias are balanced for vitamins, minerals, and other body builders.

These lunches can be prepared more cheaply than a similar meal prepared at home.

School operation is economical because of large quantities and the government surplus program, Blandy said.

Another advantage of the school lunch program is giving the child a chance to learn to handle money and to eat in public.

Does a man who thinks about food all day do his own cooking? Mrs. Blandy is an excellent cook," he said. "At home, I don't cook except when she isn't able to."

Deletion in Frampton Drain Work Approved

Deletion of a small stub drain as a part of the Frampton Ave. project in Harbor City has been approved, Supervisor Burton W. Chace said today.

Engineering studies have revealed there is Los Angeles drain running in Van Tress Ave. between "R" St. and Chandler St. A small lateral had been planned in this stretch of the Frampton project.
